OPEN ACCESS Freely available online
ISSN 3107-9857
Journal of Women's Clinical Health Research
Editorial Note

Editorial Overview of Journal of Women's Clinical Health Research

Neerja Gupta*

Director & Head – Breast Surgical Oncology, Max Hospital Dwarka, India

Welcome to the journal of Women clinical health and Research

As part of oncology care gives and being the frontiers of oncology, we are the advocates of not just the patient treatment but the woman behind the scene. The primary subject,a woman whose life s decision is being discussed every second and yet her voice is not heard. She bears the weight of family pressure, economic and social along with the hardcore treatment which is an essentially unavoidable event to follow. Her scars are a mark of success as treatment but they are also a reflection of a broken self image and self worth. We as care givers need to strengthen the aesthetics of oncology which is as important in rehabilitation as any other recovery. But to help in the reinstatement of aesthetic erasure,to fill in the void, we are keen to publish articles on challenges in restorative aesthetics, complete rehabilitation on emotional and psychological well being of patient. Also,genetic and fertility aspects need more insight to rise above the conventional wisdom in order to to rebuild the identity of a woman. Various fields of women health including biological, reproductive,familial and post treatment satisfaction and rehabilitation are a niche to Breast Oncology and hence more clinical data and studies are needed in the direction to support and improve the same. Cost and insurance are the architectural support which should become a foundation rather than a baggage. Non profit NGO and organisation who are diligently working are quintessential bodies but there could be an extended support from more oncology areas.The journal invites data supported publications, case reports,articles which can bring supportive revolutionary changes.

I invite the readers and authors to interact with the journal content not just as a blueprint of data but a future building of a territory where a woman s identity and quality of life is discussed and find solutions where her treatment is not discounted due to lack of financial or logistic resources. Join us in building an academic fort to bring meaningful changes in how Oncology or any woman health subject is practiced, moving a little ahead from conventional to creation,from tradition to the transit of refinement. Removing the insurance trap, the human void in treatment, building strong frontiers and anchors to more patient friendly aesthetic comes and incorporating them as an essential part of the treatment is the ultimate goal. This can be achieved with stratification of data, clinical experiences,case studies and publishing related to NGO and other voluntary bodies. While the readers will be able to access the content, being open access journal,they will also be able to contribute their relevant experience to the published article in the form of comments. Being a global access journal,it's motif is dedicated to become a blueprint of an equitable future for women health.

Correspondence to: Neerja Gupta, Director & Head – Breast Surgical Oncology, Max Hospital Dwarka, India, Email: neerjagupta7677@gmail.com

Received: June 01, 2026; Manuscript No: JWHS-26-9223; PreQc No: JWHS-26-9223 (PQ); Manuscript No: JWHS-26-9223 (R); Published: September 17, 2026, DOI: 10.67238/jwhs.2026.v2.05

Citation: Gupta N (2026). Editorial Overview of Journal of Women's Clinical Health Research. J. Women's Clin. Health Res. Vol.2 Iss.1, September (2026), pp:32.

Copyright: © 2026 Neerja Gupta. This is an open-access article distributed under the terms of the Creative Commons Attribution License, which permits unrestricted use, distribution, and reproduction in any medium, provided the original author and source are credited.